BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Arthur Douglas Woodall (September 25, 1952–), the son of Japheus P. and Estherleana Woodall, was born and reared in Anderson, Indiana. He has three brothers and one sister. He was educated at local schools and graduated from Anderson High School. He received a BS degree from Ball State University in 1975. For the past 30 years, he has worked for the city of Anderson in the Water Pollution Control Department.

As a result of his interest in photography and the history of African Americans in Indiana, Woodall travelled to several counties throughout the state and took photographs of many historic properties related to black history. Most of these sites are on the National Register of Historic Places.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The one-folder collection contains fifteen color photographs of Indiana African American historic properties, most of which are listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Unless otherwise indicated, the dates below signify the year that the properties were listed in the National Register. The three that are not included in the National Register have received markers from the state of Indiana (year of commemoration preceded by SM) through the Indiana Historical Bureau. All of the National Register properties have also received state recognition through the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology, the agency that manages Indiana's participation in the Register. (Many of these also have state markers.) Three of the sites (Eleutherian College, Levi Coffin State Historic Site, and the Madame Walker Theatre Center) have been designated as National Historic Landmarks (NHL). The photographs were taken by Arthur D. Woodall in 1995. They include:
