HISTORICAL SKETCH

Hagerstown, Indiana, is located in the far eastern portion of the state in Wayne County. The town was platted in 1832 and has a population in 2015 of 1,787.

Early on religious groups organized in the area, the Salem Baptists being the first in 1816. By 1820 the German Baptists, also called Dunkards, settled near Hagerstown. They came from Germany to escape religious persecution and wore distinctive dark clothing similar to the Quakers. They farmed, built mills and started businesses. The Teetor family was part of this group.

In 1895, the Railway Cycle Manufacturing Company was started by Charles Teetor, inventor of a "railway cycle" which became the Light Inspection Car for inspecting railroad tracks. The company later became the Teetor-Hartley Motor Company, and manufactured auto motors. In 1926 the name was changed to the Perfect Circle Company and was one of the largest piston ring manufacturers in the world. Perfect Circle was sold to the Dana Corporation in 1963 and the facility closed in 1995.

One interesting Hagerstown resident seen in this collection is Johnnie Horine. Known as the "globe-trotting bootblack" Horine shined shoes and saved for his travels to various places, among them; the Middle East, the Holy Land, and World Expositions.

Most images are identified and include group portraits of families and organizations in Hagerstown and Wayne County, Indiana. The congregation of the White Branch Brethren Church, the Richmond GGG, the Light Inspection Car Company [Brass] Band, and the "Pioneer" baseball team are among the groups identified. The photographs were taken ca. 1900–ca. 1920.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The glass plates were donated by Robert Montgomery of Cambridge City, Indiana. The copy photographs were made from those negatives by Jack Householder. The collection contains nine boxes of glass plate negatives, one box of copy photographs, two 5x7 acetate negatives, and a typed list describing people and events. Identification provided by different individuals is written or attached to the backs of many photographs.

The glass plates are in no particular order and not all of the images in the typed list are found in the collection. The processors transcribed only the descriptions where there is a corresponding negative and/or photograph.
