BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL SKETCH

Herman List: According to the 1900 Census Herman List was born in Indiana in June of 1871. Both his parents were from Germany. List was married, his wife's name was Sophia and she was also born in Germany. The couple had twin sons, Herman and Harold who were born in July of 1899. The list family resided at 330 Virginia Avenue in Indianapolis where his occupation is listed as "bakery." A search of the city directory for that year confirms that List is a baker at his home address. Previous to this in 1897 he is listed as a cook at 102 N. Capitol Ave. then in 1898 he is listed as a cook at the Allen Surgical Institute. By 1910 the census records show that List has moved east of Indianapolis to Knightstown, Indiana and he is again a baker. Two glass lantern slides found with the collection indicate that while in Knightstown List had a business there called List & Sohn.

National Surgical Institute: Launched by surgeon Dr. Horace R. Allen in 1858 in Indianapolis, the National Surgical Institute became an internationally famed clinic/hospital for congenital deformities. Its first location was in two four-story buildings on the northeast corner of Illinois and Georgia streets. The Institute paid special attention to treating limb, hip and facial deformities with surgery and mechanical appliances. However the facility also accepted patients suffering from tumors, sinus and nervous problems, stuttering, feminine disorders, and more.

Following a devastating fire at the Institute in January 1892 Allen built a modern health facility at the corner of Ohio and Capitol streets. The financial stress following the fire caused him to raise fees. This resulted in a dramatic loss of patients. Allen entrusted the operation of the Institute to his family and colleagues, left town (1895), and settled in Chicago where he established another institute. In 1898 the Institute, which had treated more than 50,000 patients during its 35 plus years went into receivership in November of that year. The building with its distinctive towers and ornate ironwork later became the Imperial Hotel. The building is now gone and a parking lot occupies the space to the north of the Indiana State House.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The collection is in the original order maintained by Herman List. Series 1 is made up of digital scans of his nitrate negatives, Series 2 contains the glass negatives, and Series 3 is the glass lantern slides and artifacts.

Series 1: The nitrate negatives measured 3 ½ x 4 inches and were found numbered and stored between the pages of six small notebooks. Three other notebooks contain an index of the numbered negatives with names and descriptions of the images. These notebooks are stored in folder 1 of the manuscript materials. The pictures appear to have been taken during List's employment as the cook or baker for the National Surgical Institute during the waning days of the Institute's existence. Calendars visible in two images show that the year is 1897. There are views of downtown Indianapolis taken from the roof of the Institute and interior and exterior views of the Institute. Most of the images however show what appear to be List's fellow employees and patients skylarking and posing on the roof and in the rooms of the Institute. List names most of the individuals, patients and employees alike. Some of them are listed by their first name or what appears to be their nickname. Patients can be seen with braces, crutches and wheelchairs alongside employees.

Series 2: The glass plate negatives were not numbered and were in disorder. The processor found a partial list of glass plates in the notebook index but there was no way to connect the images with the numbers. Plates 1 through 49 are more views of Indianapolis, a parade, and the Surgical Institute. The interior views show patient rooms are well furnished with Eastlake furniture, wallpaper, and personal items. Plates 50 to 75 appear to be List family and friends. The twins can be seen in several images as they grow from toddlers to about age ten.

Series 3: Separate from the images taken by List are two glass lantern slides that are from his business in Knightstown. They appear to be advertisements for Armor ham and lard products for sale by List & Sohn. Included in this series are some camera equipment artifacts used by list to develop his photographs.

List's descriptions are transcribed as he wrote them. The processor has added comments in square brackets [] to describe some images. List used the term "views" in his index and that term has been maintained in the numbering of the nitrate negatives. The glass plates were numbered by the processor.
