HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Review Club was started in 1922 by a group of young married women on the northside of Indianapolis. They planned a rather serious program of book reviews. Over the years, the programs came to include professional speakers, trips around the state to visit libraries and other points of interest, and even a club quartet. As members died or moved away, they were replaced. The membership remained at about thirty, with an added list of inactive or non-resident members. Most members were the college-educated wives of professional or businessmen.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

This collection, filling one small manuscript box, contains historical material and club yearbooks from the years 1922-1994. It is arranged by category, and chronologically within category.

Folders 1-8 contain historical material. On its major anniversaries the club usually had an historical account; one of these, several pages long and undated, is in verse.

Folders 9-11 contain a nearly complete series of club yearbooks from 1922 to 1994.
