HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Society of Friends, or Quakers, is a religious sect founded by George Fox in England in 1647. The first Quaker meetings were established in America in the late seventeenth century, and the first meeting was established in Indiana in 1809.

Differences among Quakers concerning theology, discipline, manner of worship, and members' interactions with the larger society led to several divisions within the Society of Friends during the nineteenth century. The most significant occurred in 1827–28 and resulted in the formation of two branches—Orthodox and Hicksite (named for Elias Hicks, a New York Quaker). After 1828, most Indiana Quakers attended meetings of the Orthodox branch.

By the beginning of the 20th century, Quakers had largely abandoned the two widely recognized external signs of membership in the Society of Friends—"plain speech" (the use of "thee" and "thou") and distinctive "plain dress." Many Quaker meetings had also adopted forms of worship (e.g., singing, revivals, preaching) and structure (e.g., the designation of pastors), which were similar to other Protestant denominations.

Quaker missionary activity, much of it initiated by Indiana Quakers, has resulted in significant demographic changes within the Society of Friends worldwide. The largest populations of Quakers now live in Kenya, and Bolivia's number of Quakers is rapidly increasing.

Quakers have long been associated with reform movements. During the first half of the nineteenth century, Quakers were among the leading opponents of slavery in the United States. After the Civil War they were prominent in efforts to educate and provide for the care of freed slaves. Other concerns of Quakers include Native American rights, women's rights, prison reform, and world peace. Prominent Indiana Quaker reformers include Levi Coffin (associated with the Underground Railway), Rhoda Coffin, and Sarah Smith (both active in women's prison reform).

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The collection contains bound-volume and microfilm records of various meetings of the Society of Friends in Indiana and neighboring states, 1803–1962. Included are minutes and records for Anti-Slavery Friends (Series 1, 1843–1928); Indiana Yearly Meeting—Hicksite (Series 2, 1828–1948); Indiana Yearly Meeting—Orthodox (Series 3, 1809–1962); Western Yearly Meeting—Conservative (Series 4, 1837–1961); Western Yearly Meeting (Series 5, 1815–1955); Ohio: Indiana Yearly Meeting—Hicksite (Series 6, 1803–1921) and Ohio: Indiana Yearly Meeting—Orthodox (Series 7, 1807–1949) which were held in Ohio but pertained to Indiana meetings from counties in Indiana; and Friends meetings in Michigan (Series 8, 1841–1930). Among the collection's materials are minutes from men's, women's and joint meetings as well as birth, death, and marriage records.

The records also contain an index to Quaker Monthly Meetings for Indiana (Series 9, F 1604–1622) which is arranged alphabetically by meeting and includes a list of the meetings and dates when known. There is also indexes to records in other states (Series 10, F 1623–1666) and the Hinshaw Index to Indiana Quaker Meeting Records (Series 11, BV 0541–0542).
