HISTORICAL SKETCH

In 1994, an Indiana Heritage Research Grant (IHRG) sponsored by the Indiana State Museum Society in Indianapolis provided for the preservation and inventory of photographs, costumes, and accessories in the Golden Troupe Collection at the New Harmony State Historic Site. New Harmony was the home of a troupe of professional actors and musicians in the late 19th century. The center of the company was the Golden family, whose artifacts make up the Golden Troupe Collection. The project also helped create an exhibit featuring some of the photos, costume accessories and archival records as well as an exhibit guidebook and booklet of biographical sketches on members of the Golden family.
