The Lebermuth Company is a world-class fragrance and flavor company that empowers a passionate and creative team to provide quality and innovative products using expertise and technology, which enhances and strengthens partners' brand identities.

“My grandfather started this company in 1908,” says Irv Brown, chairman, Lebermuth. “Although cliché, times sure have changed. Like any other successful business that is thriving after 100 years, we have done well and continue to flourish because of basic commitments, which include intense dedication to our customers, product quality controls and the desire to change as the industries we serve change ... and yes, a whole lot of sweat and some tears.”

The Lebermuth Company is a family-owned business. The company, originally known as M. Brown & Sons, continues to be one of the world's largest grower-direct suppliers of essential oils. Today, fourth generation great-grandsons now run the corporation. Irvin Brown, third generation, established Lebermuth in 1974. Lebermuth's business focus in the 1970s and 1980s was directed toward servicing the potpourri and craft markets; providing decorative botanicals, herbs, spice and fragrances to the fast growing home fragrance market. Eventually, M. Brown and Lebermuth merged into one corporation and retained the corporate name Lebermuth.

Today, the company sells essential oils to the aromatherapy, flavor and fragrance industries and continues to service the potpourri and craft industries and have expanded into the industrial and institutional markets and personal care products industries.

Lebermuth's employees are actively engaged in contributing to our community and giving back. The company financially supports many different school and extracurricular activities in our communities where we live and work, including the American Heart Association, Ronald McDonald House, Bremen High School athletics, Penn High School athletics, Michiana soccer, Clay High School athletics, St. Joe County Sheriff posse, Survive Alive and the Jewish Federation of St. Joseph County.

Lebermuth is a customer-focused company dedicated and driven to service our valued customers by offering quality fragrances, flavors, essential oils and natural raw materials. Since 1908 – “Your satisfaction is our promise.”
